

Traffic Light

1. Every student gets a laminated traffic light and three “light” cutouts. Find something removable to keep the “lights” on the traffic post.

2. At the start of class, the child only has a green light. If he gets a warning for breaking a rule, he must put up a yellow light. If he breaks another rule (or the same one), he gets a red light.

3. Have set consequences for yellow or red lights (such red light might be a time out or a note sent to parents). Make sure children know the consequences ahead so they will want to do right.
